MEN'S INTEREST

TikTok was conquering the world, until it became the victim of a new Cold War between China and Donald Trump, who wants it bought out – or shut down.

In its November/December issue, WIRED UK asks how exactly did Generation Z's favourite jocular videos app come to spook Washington's anti-Chinese security establishment? At one level, TikTok faces narrow accusations about privacy and data, and whether its user's information is at risk of being transferred to China.

BUSINESS & POLITICS

The NEW YORKER October 5, 2020

Ruth Bader Ginsburg, the second woman to be appointed to the Supreme Court, died on Friday, at the age of eighty-seven. Ginsburg spent nearly three decades on the country's highest bench, and five decades as a tireless scholar, teacher, and advocate of equality. To commemorate her, the artist Bob Staake said, he "needed to think of a graphic metaphor that embodied Ginsburg's life and legacy." He wanted something that was "honest and no-nonsense," like Ginsburg.

BUSINESS & POLITICS

The NEW YORKER October 12, 2020

In the first Presidential debate, Donald Trump was asked to denounce white supremacists—and, specifically, the Proud Boys, a far-right group associated with political violence. "Proud Boys, stand back and stand by," Trump said. The next day, the Proud Boys' chairman, Enrique Tarrio, wrote online, "Standing by sir." In the cover for the October 12, 2020, issue, David Plunkert speaks to the ways in which Trump's appeal to extremists has moved beyond a mere dog whistle.
